Description:

Pamela and I will work together the first weekend of February to integrate her art curriculum into my psychology class. Her students will be ninth graders and my students are upperclassmen, which provides a possible mentoring relationship which could be reciprocal if the ninth graders are up to enlightening my students about what they are learning in art class.

Basically, the theme will be "Internationalism" which is so handy for us since Everett has more than 50 nationalities represented in the student population. Students will create an image of their face by making the lines words that describe the individual. Since I also stress self-awareness in my psychology class, students will create their identity as they explore where they are coming from and where they want to go. We will have students work in pairs with each other from the classes and then put their work on display at the Dance, Art, and Dessert show Ms. Collins always puts on from 3/27-3/28.

Hope that is sufficient for the time-being!

Sincerely,

Jennifer LeRoy
